

I ask that you please retain the current limitations on the ownership of broadcast stations and newspapers. Loosening these rules will surely lead to greater media consolidation. Consolidation means less competition, less consumer choice, and lower quality. Several new networks, such as the WB, UPN, and Fox, are relatively new. How could another such network get started if all the stations are owned by the existing networks? Do not allow the networks to establish vertical monopolies!